

To whom it may concern,

LINXS is an advanced studies institute whose mission is to promote science and education focusing on the use of neutrons and light sources, to attract world-leading scientists for short-term focused research visits, and to create international networks. A part of LINXS's duty is to support related research activities at its partner organisations. With respect to profile areas, LINXS is keen to support different areas and can be involved in several profile area applications depending on their relevance to the use of large scale research facilities, associated infrastructures and complementary techniques. LINXS will not pursue its "own" profile area, as this would be inconsistent with its function.

Therefore, LINXS is happy to officially engage and support any relevant profile area, and we are happy to provide a statement or letter of support to that effect. We encourage PIs interested in having LINXS's official support to contact the LINXS Director, Trevor Forsyth (trevor.forsyth@linxs.lu.se) with the administrative head, Anna Ntinidou (anna.ntinidou@linxs.lu.se), in copy.

Best wishes,
LINXS Management
